The Late President Salamon's Offer to President Cleveland.

MEW LIGHT ON THE MAITIAN QUESTION—INTER OCEANIC CANAL COMPLICATIONS MAY INCREASE OUR ALREADY GREAT INTEREST IN THE MILAND REPUBLIC AND ITS APPAIRS.

Now disclosed for the first time is a fact that may throw some light on the American policy with relation to Hayti and suggest reasons why Mr. Blaine desired a commission sent to that island republic.

Shortly before President Salamon died he despaired of ever having an entirely stable government in Hayti without the friendly assistance of the United States and he concluded to ask for a close alliance. He first made a verbal proposition to our minister at Hayti, and later put it in the form of an official communication, which he sent to President Cleve-PRESIDENT SALAMON'S OFFER.

He offerred, in this communication, to give to the United States the absolute right to the port and harbor known as Mole San Nicholas, one ...Page 8 of the best harbors of the island, for a naval station, that we might establish there a coaling station and harbor for the American squadron. He made this as a direct offer in settlement of any differences that might exist between the two countries, and followed it with an expression of the wish that the United States might extend a protectorate over the island. This proposition was received by the President and is now on file at the State department. Before any action could be taken on it President Salamon died and the internal troubles that are now disturbing the island began.

REASONS WHY PART OF THE OFFER SHOULD MAYE BEEN ACCEPTED. Perhaps the State department under its then management was tardy in taking action. It is not at all likely that the department would have entertained the idea of extending a protectorate over Hayti, but there were very great reasons, which still exist, why the proposition to give us the port of San Nicholas should have en received with great satisfaction. We have no harborage or coaling station in the West Indies. With the complications that are liable to arise at any time over the conflicting interests of France and America in the interoceanic canal enterprises and other matters of commercial value to us. it is of the greatest importance that we should have a foothold for a

THE PROPOSED COMMISSION TO MATTL This proposition was still unacted upon when it is believed to have furnished the incentive for his proposition to send a commission to Hayti. It is not at all certain that, in the ordinary course of diplomacy, we would be able to get as liberal concessions from the new government as were offered by Salamon. The by proper diplomacy to bring about such a control of artisans' dwellings, concession as we want, It is believed that Mr. Blaine's idea in proposing the commission was to make inquiries into this matter and to learn what Legitime's disposition was before recognizing him by sending a minister. THERE IS A VERY CLOSE BELATIONSHIP

LONDON, July 19.—The end of the Parnel commission is in sight. The evidence will close next Tuesday. Bir Henry James will then reply for the Times, and the judges will then call some additional witnesses and the court will probably close by the end of next week. A report will be sent to the government in No-February. Meanwhile the Parnellite members will move in the commons for a committee of inquiry into the Pigott letters. They believe they are on the track of remarkable disclosures as to where money for concocting the "Parnellism and Crime" charges come from. But of LONDON, July 19.—Yesterday's sitting of the international labor conference in Paris was important as defining the future labor program of the world, the salient features being international action for shorter hours of labor and a minimum wage. REFORMS IN RUSSIA.

London, July 19.—Reports from St. Peters burg indicate that the ezar is having a hard time with the reforms he is trying to introduce for the better administration of his dominions. Count Tolstoi, late minister of the interior, before his death prepared a comprehensive system of reforms calculated to relieve the subjects of the czar, to some extent, from the terrible load of oppression under which they have groaned for centuries. The czar appears to be in earnest in the wish to push the project of Count Tolstoi, as is also his new minister of the interior, Gen. Duenowe, but the council of state of the empire interposes obstacles at every step. This body is composed largely of the nobles of Russia and these are hand and glove with the petty officials all over the empire, who are the beneficiaries of the corrupt ivatem of administration which it was Tolstoi's this council had his whole scheme of reform under discussion for some time, and finally threw it out as impracticable without attempting to deal with the subject further. THIS ANGERED THE CEAR GREATLY. and he returned the measure to his counci with instructions to take some action. He read them a lecture which few of the nobler relished, and intimated that it would have been more statesmanlike to have amended Tolstoi's plans in such particulars as seemed necessary, instead of unconditionally throwing it out The time had come for the council to close its sessions and the nobles were anxious to get home, but the czar told them very plainly he would keep them there six months if necessary until they reached some intelligent solution of the grave problems presented to them.

SUT SO BITTER IS THE OPPOSITION to the whole Tolstoi scheme of reform, so council has not yet been able to twist it into a shape to suit themselves. The project, as a whole, only commands one vote in the whole and set them in operation in four departments sition the czar has just rejected, and he insists that the council pass some comprehensive measure on the lines indicated by Tolstoi with whatever amendments they see fit, but he will not listen to any experiments of this sort, the certain outcome of which he very well will be it will be interesting to watch.

Curcaso, July 12.-A special to the Most from Milwaukee, Wis., says: It is no violation of confidence to my that the report of Mr. Theodore Rossevelt on Postmaster Paul was received with many manifestations of approval. It was generally conceded to be a sort of piledriver blow, and not a few people thought that it would take some of the gas and effervescence out of the Bourbon postmaster. Such is not the case, however, for Mr. Paul comes up smiling and says Theodore is another,
"It is the most disreputable and foolish lot of misrepresentations and falsehoods I have ever seen put together, and it is done in the most bungling mauner," said he in referring to the report of the civil service commission. "Mr. Roosevelt is seeking for notoriety," he continued, "and before he gets through he will get more than he bargained for. The records of half an hour longer they would all have been the post office are open to inspection, and I defy any one to find where I have violated the law or the rules of the commission in a single Slugger Sullivan on His Way to particular. I have a letter from ex-Commissioner Dorman B. Eaton, the father and originator of the civil service law in this country. Mr. Eaton says that I am right and sustains me in every point. The letter of the commissioners to the local board, in 1885, was not, as Mr. Roosevelt asserted, intended only for a particular emergency, but was general in its scope, I am preparing to reply to Mr. Boosevelt's tirade. He takes the statements of Shidy against those of Johnson, Fahsel and myself and then proposes to remove us all. I defy him to show an office in the United States conducted more strictly in accordance with the law than the Milwaukee post office. I defy any fair minded man to take the records and the testimony and find anything reflecting upon the integrity of Mr. Johnson, Mr. Fahsel or myself. The truth is that Mr. Roosevelt is seeking notoriety. He came to Milwaukee with his mind made up to convict. To accomplish

> O'BRIEN VS. SALISBURY. Commencement of the Suit for Slander Against the Premier.

LONDON, July 19.—The trial of the action of Mr. William O'Brien against Lord Salisbury for slander began to-day. Mr. O'Brien testified that he had never incited to murder or robbery either upon the platform or in his paper, United Ireland. He never advocated crime. Sir Edward Clarko, solicitor general, counsel for Lord Salisbury, subjected Mr. O'Brien to a lengthy, searching, cross-examination. He aimed to show that the witness' editorial articles and speeches justified the language med by Lord Salisbury.

Reports of Railroad Purchases Put Out for Stock-Jobbing Purposes.

CHICAGO, July 12.—A local paper prints the following: The bankers' triangle to neutralize the bad effects of the collapse of the Interstate commerce ratiway association has kept tis literary bureau busy all week telegraphing reports of gigantic railroad combinations, changes in ownership of roads, &c. Their object is to create the impression that the roads which in ownership of roads, &c. Their object is to create the impression that the roads which have withdrawn from the association and stand in the way of its success will soon be in control of parties who will act in harmony with the association and carry out the behests of the bankers' triangle, even to the extent of joining J. J. McCook's trust scheme.

The reports that the Alton is likely to change ownership before long and that the Burlington and Quincy is about to obtain control of the Burlington and Northern are to convey the impression that those roads would soon be stopped from doing any mischief or prevent the establishment of high rates. There is no possible chance that the Alton will be sold. It is not for sale except at a price far above its actual value. Neither Jay Gould nor any one else would want to buy the road at the figures it is held at by its owners. Its stock is not in the market and cannot be raided and forced down like the stock of it outright. Another story given currency by the bankers' literary bureau is that the text of the bill which is to be introduced at the opening session of Congress in December, involving the most gigantic scheme for railroad consolidation ever candidly discussed, is now being put into type and that a Chicago firm (Rand, Mc-Nally & Co.) is engaged in publishing the maps illustrating the consolidation of railway lines and the tracts of country which are to supply the proposed system with business. This scheme embraces a consolidation of the Union and Northern Pacific roads and the Canadian That the whole thing is visionary is shown by the fact that the Canadian Pacific is a Canadian government road and cannot be consolidated with American roads. Mr. McNally says he has never heard of the project, and his firm is preparing no maps for any such scheme. The report is undoubtedly an elaboration of the statement that the Union Pacific is interested in the construction of a line southwest from a point in the Zoo line in Wisconsin to aged. Sioux City and Omaha, and thus connection with the Canadian Pacific forms a short line

A LONDON BRICK TRUST. No Object to to Purchase Brick Yards In the United States.

Lowers, July 18 .- A joint stock company was erganized here to-day, which is of the nature of a trust, for the purchase of the principa brick pards in the United States. The mage tintions have already been practically concluded with George W. Mears, a well-known Michigan attorney, so far as the brick yards of the city of Detroit are concerned, the English syndicate agreeing to purchase the plant and material of the several yards there for about $500,000. The propositions made include the real estate and good will of each firm selling out. The brick yards of Detroit are said to have an annual aggregate capacity and output of 80,010,000 brick at from $6 to $7 a thousand the yearly business amounting to ever $400,000. This capital combination will be of an entirely different character to that recently organized to operate the American breweries. The plan of the brick-yard trust is to extinguish the smaller yards and concentrate the business in one or two large yards. New and improved machinery is contemplated which will produce brick at a reduced price. The syndicate will take charge of the Detroit brick yards within thirty days, according to the agreements made

STORMS IN VARIOUS PLACES.

Damage by Wind and Rain-Less in Property and Crups Great.

PRORIA, ILL., July 19.-One of the heavier storms ever known visited this city this merning about 3 e'clock. The upper part of the city and the race track at Lake View park was delaged. At the race track there were about 100 head of racers, and if the storm had continued swept away. The track is entirely under water and the amphitheater is gone. It is impossible at present to get a horse either in or out of the park. The damage to track and grounds is es-timated at several thousand dollars. Nothing but a miracle prevented the drowning of a Va., July 18.—Une of the most disastrons cloud bursts over known here occurred yesterday on the Elk river, 15 miles above the city. Great quantities of timber. The loss is heavy to the lumbermen and farmers, and is estimated at $50,000. The dry docks Were also swept away.

Rain Wanted in Dakota. GRAND FORES, DAE., July 12.—The past four days have been extremely hot. Tuesday night there was one of the heaviest rainfalls that ever visited this section. The countries of Bottineau, Rolletto, Ramsay, Nelson, and Traill ali needed the rain and they got it in profuse quantitios. Case county failed to get a dipper full. Yesterday the sun fairly boiled everything, and now it is feared damage has been done to the crop in Grand Forks, Walsh, and Pombina counties. There is much depending on the condition of the weather during the next three

HELPING THE NEEDY. Disgust at the Method of Distribution in Johnstown.

JOHNSTOWN, PA., July 19.—The apparently unequal distribution of the governor's relief fund by the state commission is the co for much dissatisfaction among the sufferers. The more the commission explain the more they are consured, and come of officials are already talking of trip for their health. Charges of favorities by the board of inquiry, which is responsible for the amounts paid is heard on all sides. Several citizens who had suffered greatly, today refused to accept the $50 for which their warrants were filled out, and left headquarters been a quick way of reaching the deserving, but the execution was bad. The World people trusted to a certain doctor to give them the names of needy sufferers. He did this, managing to have the larger part of the list made up of personal friends. Soon after the distribution began this was detected. Those who had no cards pressed forward and the mob became so great no pregress in an orderly distribution could be made. The party worked all the afternoon and until 10 o'clock last night and began early again this

J., July 19.-James Biggs, about fifty-five years of age, said to be a prosperous citizen of Paterson, shot himself through the heart and died almost instantly in O'Neill's saloon in this city this morning. He reached Trenton last night and put up at the Treaton house. He bought a revolver and had himself shaved, after which he went into the saloon, and, taking a position before a mirror, fired the fatal shot. He left several letters, among them one to his wife, in which he stated that he committed suicide because he was no longer in his right mind owing to his sprees. From Wall Street To-day. New York, July 19, 11 a.m.-The London

People with Whims. From Chambers' Journal.

Beware of the man who thinks he has none, for he is the man most likely to be permeated, saturated with whimsicalities. Our whims become a part of our character, just as our virtues or our vices; indeed, with some of us they become so prominent that they overshadow everything else in our hatures, and we would not be recognized by our triends if, like Christian at the Beautiful Gate, we should suddenly foso the burden and appear before them.

NO PRIZE FOR DUNRAVEN. The New York Yacht Club Offers No

Special Cup.

The meeting of the New York yacht club. held yesterday afternoon, at Delmonico's entirely unanimous on this point. The earl, Dunraven's challenge.

Dunraven's challenge.

Commodore Gerry presided, and the most important business of the meeting was, of course, the consideration of the America's cup committee's report which was presented by ex-Commodore Smith as follows:

The America's cup committee have the honor to report that the challenge made by the Royal yacht squadron on behalf of the earl of Dunraven for the America's cup has been withdrawn. They herewith submit the entire correspondence. In their letters of July 16 to the special committee of the Royal yacht squadron, and also to Lord Dunraven, they felt it incumbent upon themselves to show that the last statement in the letter from the special committee of the Royal yacht squadron. the letter from the special committee of the Royal yacht squadron, viz., that "in the event Royal yacht squadron, viz., that "in the event of winning the cup they would be compelled to insist upon receiving more favorable terms from a challenger than those under which they challenged," is a clear contradiction of the terms of the deed of gift, because it gives to the club challenging and to the club holding the cup the right to make the match on any terms or conditions satisfactory to both parties; thereby giving the holder the right to make any concessions if willing to do so. We therefore submit, that a lamentable ignorance is betrayed as to the nature and terms of the deed, or such a statement could not be made at the very moment that the New York yacht club was very moment that the New York yacht club was giving terms for a match different from those contained in the deed of gift. With this your committee's functions end. We ask to have our report accepted and the committee dis-

The report was subsequently modified by substituting for the sentence following "if willing so to do." the clause "and we fail to understand their misconception on this point."

A resolution was unanimously adopted accepting the report of the America's cup committee, and requesting the committee to publish the same in pamphlet form for distribution.

Frederic J. Tans offered this resolution, which was also unanimously adopted:
Resolved, That the New York yacht club do not put up a special cup for competition in a match race with the Valkyrie, as suggested in Earl Dunaven's letter of June 24, 1889, to the chairman of the America's cup committee, but that all the club events be opened to him, and that the earl of Dunraven be so notified by the

the 70 and 40 foot classes.

It was generally understood by those at the meeting that Gen. Paine would decline to act as Lord Dunraven's representative. It was known that he had expressed his intention to wait until he learned the result of the New York Yacht club's meeting yesterday before making up his mind one way or the other. It had been suggested to him that if a match were made by the club for the boat which in all probability would have been selected to defend the cup against the Valkyrie it would be made for the Volunteer, and in that case, if he were Lord Dunraven's representative, he would were Lord Dunraven's representative, he would be in the anomalous position of acting against his own boat. This obstacle was removed by yes-terday's action of the club, and it is now possible that he may consent to act for the earl. The action of the club was communicated to

The Fate of Old Shoes. From the Shoe and Leather Review.

This is in a great measure due to the collections of old scraps of leather, which are taken to mills where they are cut up into fine dust. To this is added about 40 per cent of India rubber, and the whole is then subjected to a pressure of 6,000 or 10,000 pounds per square foot. The substance is then colored, and it is sold at prices some 50 per cent below that of natural leather. It is manifestly a poor substitute, and it is wholly wanting in fiber; in fact, if it were not for the insane craze for cheap articles, which buyers vainly hope to substitute for those which, though the original cost is greater, and yet in the end cheaper, we should never hear of this compound, which might almost as well be made of sawdust as leatherdust. In consequence of the manufacture and sale of large quantities of inferior leather many old-established tanners are now stamping theirs with a trade-mark, which is some guarantee to the buyer, as he may be sure no man will put his name or trade-mark on an inferior article. It is hoped by this means to enable those who desire to by the best quality of leather to be able to secure what they want, namely, a reliable article at a moderate cost. cost.

His Accomplished Mother.

From the Bridgeport News.

The family clergyman was paying a social visit to the household, and a little boy about five years old was brought out, as is customary on such occasions. During his portion of the program he showed the clergyman how nicely he could turn a handspring. He then asked the minister if he could do that. The minister said he guessed he couldn't now, but he could when he was a little boy. "Then you ain't as amart as my mother," returned young America, "for she can do it just as well as I can."

Joseph Boivin, who arrived in Oitawa yes-terday on a raft of square timber from Upper Oitawa, reported that six men were drowned on the way.

THE PROLONGATION OF LIFE. Dr. Brown-Sequard's "Vital Principle" Not Likely to Do It.

From the Providence Journal. It is not to be wondered at that the newspapers have very generally been inclined to Broad-street place, laid a rather large wet ridicule or to doubt the announcement that blanket upon the earl of Dunraven's eagerness to send the Valkyrie to this country by physician, has discovered the long-sought-for jority of women knew of the fun and the refusing to put up a special cup to be raced "vital principle" and produced a concection for by the visitor. The meeting was large and which can indefinitely prolong human existence. Men have long since ceased to seek however, is given the privilege of entering all for the clixir of life over which generathe club events, which would undoubtedly be tions dreamed, and most men, let us hope, accorded to any other visitor. There was very have ceased to care for it or think of the evident dissatisfaction in the minds of all mysterious essence of Margrave or Van Helpresent at the manner in which the Royal mont save with the same amused pity with Yacht squadron had treated the subject of Earl which they read of the painful struggle of the anything about it experimentally, and in the alchemists for the secret which should trans-form baser metals into gold. It has very natform baser metals into gold. It has very naturally seemed absurd, then, that a great physiologist of the nineteenth century should have scriously set himself at work to prove the possibility of the end sought by man in the middle ages, and the disposition to regard the story as a hoax is certainly pardonable, despite the fact that even eminent physiologists of the nineteenth century have expressed the opinion that there is no physiological reason why man should die. But the story is not altogether a hear. Dr.

But the story is not, altogether a hoax. Dr. Brown-Sequard has not professed to have found the secret of earthly immortality, but he certainly appears to have persuaded himself that he has discovered something very nearly akin to that "vital principle" which Mr. Aifred R. Wallaco still believes to exist. The distinguished Frenchman—so says that able review, the New York Medical Journal—has long believed that such a principle resides in one of the organs of the body, at least so far that the blood spassing through it is enormously influenced thereby. With blood taken from the veins of young animals he has therefore for a series of years been inoculating old and broken-down animals, and with such surprising results that he has more recently been exceptive them to get the dear creatures fish. It fills their lungs with fresh air, deepens their narrow cheste, cures weak nerves, aids digestion and gives them plenty of exercise. This is true, both in creasing attention paid by women to physical and muscular development there ought to be more made by men for the women to join them in freir active sports, so that their ruddy cheeks and strong limbs may be preserved. If amazonian acquirements are not be used, why acquirements are not be used, why acquirements are not becoming general among women," continued the angler. Much has been written upon this subject in recent years. Mr. H. C. Kirk published an interesting little work upon "The Possibility of not Dying" some half a dozen years ago. Or. W. A. Hammond back in the sixtices advanced the theory that there is no physiological reason for death; Sir Spencer Wells, the famous English surgeon, has quite recently expressed his belief that the natural duration of human life should be at least 100 years, with an occasional extension of some ten or fifteen years more; and even a century ago Bichat, whose intuitions wonderfully anticipated the conclusions of a later science, held that the normal longevity of our racoshould be at least ninety-six years, basing his inference upon the fact that the life term of all known mammals exceeds at least six times the period of their at least six times the period of their growth. But all these have based their opinions have to protong life already far exceeds our willingness to apply the knowledge. A hundred years may not be an over-estimate of the natural limit of life a few generations hence, and we ourselves might-indeed be much nearer that limit if as nations we strove honestly and persistently after it. At least it is to be said that long life thus gained is the only life worth having, and the only life-which would not prove a curse rather than a blessing to the human race.

Progress of the English Language. From the Sunday School Times.

The English language is now spoken in England, Scotland and Ireland, in the British possessions of Gibraltar, Malta and Cyprus, in the British provinces of East and West India, Australia. South Africa and Canada; that is, in large parts of five continents. It is the lan-guage of the United States, and constantly large parts of five continents. It is the language of the United States, and constantly gaining over the languages of the immigrant population from all nationalities of the old world, not by compulsion or any special effort, but by the simple, silent power of its presence. It has grown with the growth of our nation, from a population of 3,000,000 to 50,000,000 in one century. In another century it may number 200,000,000, loo or 300,000,000. No nation and no language has increased with such rapidity. With the development of our resources our influence in Europe is constantly extending. Europe is getting Americanized very fast. I well remember when the English was taught in very few schools and colleges, when but two or three German divines (Tholuck and Neander) could converse in English, and when one American divine was known in Germany—Dr. Edward Robiuson—and he only because his epoch-making work in Palestine was published in a German translation by his wife simultaneously with the original. But now the English is almost as much taught as the French, and is almost as much taught as the French, and the English and American classics are republished by Tauchnitz of Leipsic for continental circulation. The educated Hindoos, Chinese and Japanese are reading English and American school books and are auxious to learn the language which promises promotion, wealth and honor. The English, moreover, is the language of the seas—the Atlantic, the Pacific, the Mediterranean; and even in the Baltic, the Gulf of Finland, and the fijords of Norway, you will hardly meet with a captain who cannot familiarly speak to you in your native tongue. falmost as much taught as the French, and

My education was effectingly limited and few books could be procured to read or study. When I commenced to write I really knew nothing of the world—and to this day have never been in any sense a traveler. The farthest I have ever been away from home. The farthest I have ever been away from home when I was a temporary resident of Philadiolphia. I never enjoyed traveling as most people do, and I think Emerson folt a good deal the same way, for he seldom went away from home. In my father's house, when I was a boy, there were not probably more than a dozen books, and all were of a peculiar type, or at least would be considered so to-day. Why, the only volume in the line of poetry was a hymned history of King David, the work of a contemporary of George Cox, the Quaker. There was a novel—a pretty poor one, however—and it belonged to an aint of mine. HOW WOMEN GO AFISHING. Some Consent to Put on Live Balt, Though Most of Them Prefer the Fly.

from the New York Sup. "Certainly there are lots of women who go a afishing," said one of the oldest members of the benefit to their health that going affishing would bring there would be something like & fashionable epidemic for angling. It would seem that most women if asked what they think of fishing as an enjoyable pursuit would in reply assume about the same attitude that most women do toward exercising the elective franchise. In the first place they don't know anything about it experimentally, and in the next place men have assumed fishing as among their manly prerogatives, and most women would on that account consider the practice of the gentle art unfeminine. Lable a pursuit unfeminine, and it is a boycet on it to the femiufine mind.

"But it is just because it is a gentle art," said the old angler, lighting a fresh cigar, "that women ought to enjoy it. Women ride after the hounds at a fox hunt, and they are more and more entering into the enjoyment of men's sports and competing with them in business. Let the dear creatures fish. It fills their lungs with fresh air, deepens their narrow cheste, oures weak nerves, aids digestion and gives them plenty of exercise. This is true, both in fresh and salt water fishing. lating old and broken-down animals, and with such surprising results that he has more recently been experimenting upon his own system. Dr. Brown-Sequard is by no means a young man—he is fast nearing four score—but these subcutaneous injections seem to have rejuveneded him, as well as the animals upon which he first made his tests. An old and decrepit dog became endowed ancew with friskiness of comparative youth; and he himself, as he tells the Paris Societo de Biologie, has felt his muscular strength in great measure returned and his mental vigor materially inoreased.

This is practically all that is yet known in this country of the result of the doctor's experiments or of his deduction concerning them, though it is safe to say that he has had no thought boyond the possibility of so restoring the waste of the system as to temporarily postpone the day of inevitable dissolution. But a without much questioning and after the fullest confirmation, because of its wide importance, and more particularly because of the radical and almost fundamental changes in our view of physiological laws which it involves. Indeed, it is not easy to believe, without the evidence of years of the most careful and the widest extended experiment and observation, that there can be any single prophylactic against all the ills of mortality. Nor is such a thing to be defined any single prophylactic against all the ills of mortality. Nor is such a thing to be defined any single prophylactic against all the ills of mortality. "In fresh water fishing women are often adepts," the old stager continued. "I do not men by that to refer to women who fish as Mrs. Frances Folsom Cleveland fishes. As soon as Mrs Cleveland gets a bite Mr. Cleveland plays the fish and pulls him. There are many women who can cast cast a fly as deftly as a man and a good deal more gracefully. It isn't necessary to say that women cannot wade brooks or gd on long tramps up and down a trout brook. to say that women cannot wado brooks or go on long tramps up and down a trout brook. They fish from row boats on a river or lake, and I have seen women who were reared in luxury in this town play a trout in the Adiron-dacks with all the skill and enjoyment of a professional. It is simply delightful to see in what charming and unconscious attitudes of grace a supple young woman can throw herself as she holds a delicate rod, now on this side and now aloft as she follows the path taken by the finny prey.

It would not have been possible for most women, until recently, to look a fish of any size and bring him to the landing net, owing to the heavy tackle that, used to be manufac-tured for men. Tackle for men is made lighter and lighter, and now tackle is made for women.

"I saw a rod the other day made by a famous rod maker for a woman of this town who is now in the Adirondacks. It is of split bamboo, time feet long and weighs exactly five ounces. The grip is of cork, which is easier to grasp than the smooth cano or wood or rubber, and easier to hold tightly in one hand. It is fitted with Orvis' patent reel seat, which, consists of a heavy-scated spring under fixed rings, and by an ingenious arrangement may be made to receive a reel with either short or long seat. With a weapon like this, by a turn of a lady's slender wrist a two-pound trout could quickly with a weapon like this, by a turn of a lady's slender wrist a two-poind trout could quickly be made to feel that he had met a mistress.

"since Mrs. Cleveland's fishing trip in the Adirondacks," added the fisherman. 'I have observed that many more women have gone atishing than ever before, probably owing to the example set by that charming lady."

FOOD IN OLD AGE. Most Aged Persons are Very Moderate

From the Fortnightly Review With regard to food we find from Dr. Humphrey's report that 90 per cent of the aged persons were either "moderate" or "small" eaters and such moderation is quite in accord with the teachings of physiology. In old age the changes in the bodily tissues gradually become ess and less active, and less food is required to make up for the daily waste. The appetito and the power of digestion are correspondingly diminished, and, although for the attainment of a great age a considerable amount of digestive power is absolutely necessary, its perfection, when exercised upon proper articles of diet, is the most important characteristic. Indulgence in the pleasures of the table is one of the common errors of advanced life, and is not infrequent in persons who, up to that period, were moderate or even small caters. Luxuries in the way of food are apt to be regarded as rewards that have been fully carned by a life rewards that have been fully earned by a life of labor and may, therefore, be lawfully enjoyed. Hence arise many of the evils and troubles of old age, and notably indigestion and gouty symptoms in various forms, besides mental discomfort. No hard and fast rules can be laid down, but strict moderation should be the guiding maxim. The diet suitable for most aged persons is that which contains much nutritive material in a small bulk, and its quantity should be in-proportion to the appetite and power of digestion. Animal tood, well cooked, should be taken sparingly and not oftener than twice a day, except under special circumstances. Dr. Parkes advocates rice as a partial substitute for Parkes advocates rice as a partial substitute for meat when the latter is found to disagree with meat when the latter is found to disagree with old persons. "Its starch grains are very digestible, and it supplies nitrogen in moderate amount, well fitted to the worn and slowly-repeired tissues of the aged." Its bulk, however, is sometimes a disadvantage; in small quantities it is a valuable addition to milk and to stewed fruits. The amount of food taken should be divided between three or four meals at fairly regular intervals. A sense of fullness or oppression after eating should not be disregarded. It indicates that the food taken has been either too abundant or of improper quality. For many elderly people the most suitable time for the principal meal is between 1 and 2 p.m. As the day advances the digestive powers become the day advances the digestive powers become less, and even a moderately substantial meal taken in the evening may seriously overtask them. Undigested food is a potent cause of disturbed sleep, an evil often very troublesome to old people, and one which ought to be carefully guarded against.

Boston Girls Devoted to Swimming. From the Boston Traveller.
While visiting Revero Beach recently the writer had the pleasure of interviewing a very prepossessing young lady while she was resting on the shore after several successful dives.

"I am in a rather damp condition to consent to an interview," she said, "but I do so love the sport of swimming and diving that I don't
